Thoughts on Advent

By Pastor Christopher Martin

As the years go by, I have come to have a great appreciation for the season of Advent. While it seems that the world around us keeps wanting to get a jump on Christmas earlier and earlier every year, I appreciate how Advent, in what is such a busy time of the year, forces us to slow down, tune out everything that we're hearing in our world, and focus on the Word that points us to the promises of the comings of Jesus. His coming in the manger in Bethlehem, His coming to us today through the Word and in the Sacraments, and in His promised coming on the Last Day. As we take the time to gather for worship around God's Word this Advent season, I want to draw your attention to one of my favorite Advent and Christmas narratives from the Gospels. I encourage you to take out your Bible and read Matthew 1:18-25. I will be preaching on this text on Sunday, December 18th, the last Sunday in Advent, but I want to bring it to your attention now because I really believe it helps set the scene for us as we soon begin our Advent journey.

This account focuses on Joseph. When Matthew first introduces us to him, Joseph has plans for his life. He is established in his career path as a carpenter. He's betrothed to Mary. He's preparing his home so that she can fully become his wife. If you were to meet him at the beginning of this text, he's confident he has his life all planned out. That is, until he receives some earth-shattering news. Mary's expecting a child, and he isn't the father of this child. And the story that Mary has just adds to the turmoil that Joseph is experiencing. Mary is telling him this child isn't the product of adultery, this child was conceived in her by the power of the Holy Spirit, because this child is the Son of God, the promised Messiah. While Mary is declaring to Joseph the Word of the Lord in its truth and purity, Joseph, based on his experience in the everyday world, doesn't believe it at first. He believes what his eyes see, that Mary has been unfaithful to him, and now he's faced with a choice. Turn her in for the sin of adultery, which would result in her being stoned to death, or divorce her quietly, hoping this entire thing will blow over and eventually, he can pick up the pieces of his shattered heart, and move on with life.

But, that's not where God leaves Joseph. He sends an angel, a messenger, to declare the truth: "Joseph, son of David, do not fear to take Mary as your wife, for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Spirit. She will bear a son, and you shall call his name Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins." (Matthew 1:20-22) From that moment on, Joseph's life changes again. He continues with his original plans of preparing his home, taking Mary to be his wife, and they will be the earthly parents of the child, Jesus, our Savior. It still isn't what Joseph had originally planned, but what God intended for his life was much different. Joseph will play an important part of God's plan of salvation as the guardian of the Savior.

Now what does this have to do with you and me, as we approach Advent and Christmas, 2022? It's been over 2,000 years since this all happened. And yet, you and I can relate to Joseph quite well. We all had plans for our lives when this calendar year began. You had things you expected to happen over the course of this year. And, for many of us, what happened to those plans? Our work situations didn't play out the way we hoped. Our health, or that of someone we love, took a turn we were not expecting. An important relationship in your life became strained, or is broken, perhaps beyond repair. You're struggling in your marriage or with your children. Many of us have lost loved ones to death, and in some cases, it came suddenly, when we were not expecting it to happen, and we're struggling to pick up the pieces and move on in the midst of our grief. For these and many other reasons, we're struggling as we enter this season where our world wants us to be all about joy and happiness, finding it in things like gift-giving or warm wishes.

If that's all we have, then, friends, we're going to be disappointed. That's why instead, I want to encourage you to slow down a bit in your rush to get to Christmas. Make worship during Advent a priority, especially if you haven't been here in a while. Set aside everything in your mind that is distracting you from what God wants to accomplish through His Word when you are here, whether it's a squabble with another church member, a bad experience you had in the past, grief that's unbearable, or whatever it is that is keeping you away. Just come, set all of that aside, and listen to the still, small voice of the Holy Spirit as you hear and ponder the Word of the Lord that we hear during Advent. It may call you to change. It may call you to take a closer look at your own life, and the sin within it, and take steps to eradicate it from your daily life. It may call you to find ways to reach out to your neighbor, and take a bold step in joining Jesus on His mission of redemption as you build relationships with others, or engage others you already know in your daily life. It may mean embracing whatever change is there, knowing that just as God had other plans for Joseph in his life, God perhaps has other plans for yours, too. That doesn't mean that the struggles you have will magically go away. But what it means is that, as with Joseph, God's plans for you may be bigger than you ever imagined possible. It won't always be easy, but the eternal rewards are an inner peace and joy the world cannot give.

As you go through your Advent journey this year, I look forward to seeing you join us for worship at church as we listen to God's Word, rejoice in the good news our Savior is born in Bethlehem, and look for ways we can share the joy of Christmas with others in our world.

Operation Christmas Child

The Operation Christmas Child project is now complete at Hope Lutheran Church. We have forwarded 55 boxes, which will be sent to Chicago and then distributed throughout the world to children who may have never received a Christmas gift before. Each child will also be receiving 12 lessons to teach them about Jesus Christ, who they may not have heard about before. Thank you to Hope Lutheran Youth for all the boxes that were packed, families who packed their own boxes, and to everyone who provided the $10 shipping fee for each box. We were able to track some of our boxes from last year (2021) and found that children in Malawi and Columbia received our gifts.
